GOOD ROADS

WILSON FAVORS GOOD ROADS
President-Elect Wilson Belief in Wisdom of National Improvement by Means of Communication.

President-elect Wilson in many public addresses has voiced his belief in the wisdom of national improvement by means of communication, and particularly of roads, to which he specifically referred in his address at the American Road congress at Atlantic City, on that occasion saying among other things:

"A nation is bound together by its means of communication; and its means of communication create its thought."

"We must more and more engage the government in providing the general facilities of the common life. There is no breach in that of any of our older understandings of the functions of government. We have never doubted that the government had the right to supply these facilities which private endeavor has never been expected to supply. Therefore we are not upon a new ground of theory; we are merely upon a new ground of fact."

"The question of highways is one of the few great instrumentalities of our public and our communal life with which the government is of necessity connected. I see that we must do what we have been backward in doing as compared with other nations."

"I tell you frankly my interest in good roads is not merely an interest in the pleasure of riding in automobiles. It is not merely an interest in the much more important matter of affording farmers of this country and residents in villages means of ready access to their neighboring markets as they need for economic benefit, but it is also the interest in weaving as complicated and elaborate a net of neighborhood and state and national opinion together as it is possible to weave. It is of the most fundamental importance that the United States should think in big pieces, should think together, should think ultimately as a whole, and I feel in my enthusiasm for good roads something of the old opposition that there always has been in me to any kind of sectional feeling."

An Improved Public Highway.

"I believe that it is the proper function of the government to see to it that the extension of all the varied modern knowledge, about characteristics of different soils, ought to be so extended, so carried everywhere to the farmer as to build up by the aid of the government this thing that feeds us, and ought to continue to feed the world, and whenever you speak of that, whenever you increase what the United States is doing, you must immediately increase the facilities of the United States for handling what it has made after it has made it. You cannot rationally increase the prosperity of this country, without increasing the road facilities of this country."

Working Dirt Roads.

There is a great waste of money on public highways. Why not use the common road drag on the country dirt roads? To show, as is often done, an earth road to be cut up in a horrible manner, without the use of the drag in the proper time, then get hard and dry, only to be worn down by the feet of the teams and tires of the vehicles, is certainly the most extravagant method that could be pursued, says a writer in the Orange Judd Farmer. It requires weeks, or possibly months, to get them in proper shape again. Drag when slushy, use good judgment in operating and it will pay any community, whether the township pays for the work or not. Of course, there should be no difficulty to get pay.

Measure by Mudholes.

As a chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so a road is no better than its worst mudhole; you have to measure your road by that hole.

POULTRY

NEW INDUSTRY IN PHEASANTS
Interest Becoming Widespread and Thousands of Birds Now Scattered Throughout Country.

(By W. L. MATEER)

Conservation of the fauna including the game birds of the United States requires the strict enforcement of laws intended to control the shooting and marketing of wild birds, and necessarily limits both the period during which they may be hunted and the number available to supply the increasing demands of those who desire these table luxuries.

This lack may be remedied by the product of aviculture, preserves, and private parks, devoted to rearing of domesticated game, the marketing of which under suitable safeguards is already permitted in several of the states, indicating that American markets will open more and more to these domesticated substitutes to the fast disappearing wild game.

At present there is no lack of demand for pheasants for various purposes. Owners of private preserves, and state game officials, pay profitable prices for certain species for stocking their covers, zoological and city parks and owners of private aviaries are ready purchasers of the rarer and more beautiful species, and large numbers of dead pheasants are annually imported from Europe to be sold for several times the price they bring in European countries. The demand for pheasants is increasing.

Ringneck pheasants have long been established in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, and are less common in the wild state in Massachusetts, New York, Indiana and Kansas. Efforts to acclimatize pheasants in the United States are of comparatively recent origin, though earlier than is popularly supposed.

The few pheasant stomachs examined indicate that these birds are very fond of grain. Oats and wheat composed about 34 per cent. of the food of 12 ringneck pheasants collected in Oregon and Washington and 32.5 per cent. of the stomach contents of two English pheasants from British Columbia. But all of these birds were taken in September, October and December; hence it is probable that all of this grain was waste. The next largest item of food in these stomachs was insects, consisting entirely of larvae of March flies. One stomach contained no fewer than 360 of these larvae and another 432. The remainder of the food included acorns, pine seeds, browse, peas, rose hips, lupine, pea, clover, black mustard and chickweed.

From 200 to 960 kernels of wheat and oats were taken by various birds; about 200 peas were found in one stomach, but it was evident that these were the old and partly decomposed refuse of the harvest. Twenty-three acorns and 200 pine seeds were taken by the birds which ate the largest amount of mast, and about 800 capsules of chickweed, containing more than 8,000 seeds, were in the stomach of the best wheat seed eater.

What is most evident is that pheasants are gross feeders; their capabilities for good or harm are great. If a number of them attack a crop they are likely to make short work of it, or if they devote themselves to weed seeds or insect pests they do a great deal of good. It seems therefore that the question of the economic value of pheasants is peculiarly a local one. Much depends on the proportion of land under cultivation, the kind of crops raised, and the quantity of wild food available. Apparently the chances are about even that imported pheasants will or will not become useful economic factors.

Clover for Fowls.

Clover is better than any other hay for fowls for the reason that it possesses egg making nutriment, as well as fiber to separate the particles of grain. It is not bulk (mere quantity) that is needed, but coarse fiber to separate the concentrated feed in the stomach, that the gastric juices can circulate through the mass.

LIVE STOCK

HOGS DURING BREEDING TIME
Of Much Importance That Sow Should Be in Good Flesh to Produce Healthy Litter of Pigs.

Sows eight months old or over may be bred, if strong and vigorous, for spring farrow, but sows that are younger than this had best not produce their first litter until next fall in order that a sow may produce a strong, healthy litter of pigs. It is stated by those who know that a sow which is gaining rapidly in flesh just before breeding is more likely to produce a large, healthy litter. To secure this condition in sows we would gradually increase the grain ration during the period extending from three weeks to a month before breeding time. We do not mean that a sow should be fed at breeding time, but merely that she should be in her most vigorous condition.

A sow is not at her best until she is two or three years of age. He may be used on a few sows when 8 or 9 months of age and on more the following year, but he should not be put into heavy service until two years or more of age. One service a day is plenty for the average sow. Food for the sow should be such as will keep him in the strongest and most vigorous condition. Three parts of corn, one part of shorts, and one-third of a part of oil meal or one-sixth of a part of tankage, with skim milk, if available, makes a splendid ration for both sows and pigs. He should be given a lot of exercise, with plenty of rows, where he can secure plenty of exercise and yet not bother the sows.

If it is necessary to buy a sow, this should be done at least three weeks before the breeding season, and the newly purchased animal kept by himself. This is simply a precaution to avoid introducing lice and possibly disease into the herd. While being kept by himself the sow should be thoroughly washed with dip every ten days.

CLIP FOR A HORSE BLANKET

Little Device Saves Animal Much Suffering When Cover is Blown Off During Severe Weather.

No matter how carefully a man may blanket his horse, the wind or the horse's own restlessness may cause the cover to be either blown off or thrown off. The horse then suffers from the cold and the blanket is trampled on and torn. But along comes a Pennsylvania man with a simple little fastener that prevents any such mishaps.

Horse Blanket Clip.

A piece of wire is bent into a hook that opens up. At the top is a large safety pin by which the device can be fastened to the blanket in an instant, or it can be left fastened. All that needs be done, then, to keep the cover on is to hook the wire under the breeching strap, and no matter how hard the wind blows or how much the horse stamps and switches his tail, there it will stay until the owner unhooks it.

A Lucrative Investment.

The hog is a valuable asset to fertilizing land and pays a good return on the crops he consumes. He will devour large quantities of inferior fruit or waste grain and vegetables, which are not otherwise marketable. He will thus yield a profit on what might otherwise be wasted. The yearly increase in young pigs keeps the supply rapidly increasing from a small beginning. He is a lucrative investment. The secret of success in farming, as in other industries, lies in finding a use for everything. There is no reason why such products as are the waste of the orchard should be thrown away. There is a use for everything on the farm if the farmer will but seek until he finds it, and the hog is a great help in putting all sorts of food to a profitable use.

EQUIPMENT OF SUGAR HOUSE

Arch and Ventilator Placed So as to Prevent Drip From Condensed Steam Falling in Pans.

In reply to an inquirer on "Problems in Maple Sugar Making," I would say that if soft coal is used for fuel grates would be necessary. Several manufactured evaporator arches would handle soft coal or wood, or both together, and my impression is that coal and wood mixed would make a dandy heat for evaporating, writes M. J. Newsome in the Michigan Farmer. If you are using a home-made arch, see that the ash pit is good and deep, say 18 or 20 inches below the grate, and full size of grate surface, built up of brick, stone or cement. Have good damper to ash pit and good, tight fire doors.

It depends some on the size of the evaporator as to the correct size of sugar house. A 3 by 12 foot arch would work nicely in a 12 by 18 foot building, with 6 foot sides and half-pitch roof. Set arch about 24 inches from one side, so as to have the working side of pans near center of floor. Put ventilator in the peak, say 20 inches wide and two-thirds the length of arch, in line with firing end of same, as 70 per cent. of the evaporating is accomplished on the front half of arch. The object of placing arch between wall and ventilator is so the drip from condensed steam will not fall in pans.

PROTECT ALL YOUNG TREES

Devastation by Rabbits May be Well Guarded Against by Use of Common Axle Grease.

We know that a rabbit is a very cleanly animal, and will not touch anything that smells strong or that is greasy, and for that reason blood and grease have been used for years as a smear for the young fruit trees that have been set out. As, however, not all folks can get or care to use such material, especially as the smell of blood at its best is but short in its duration, we suggest that common dark colored axle grease be used, says Rural Life. Herbert A. Horton, an Oregon fruit grower, claims the best results for it, saying: "I had 600 acres last summer, and it was amusing to watch the rabbits on moonlight nights. They would wrinkle their nose; spat, spat with a hind foot and move on to the next tree, but there was 'nothing doing' on the gnaw."

If one puts on a pair of cheap cotton gloves, such as the masons and carpenters use in winter, smearing them liberally in the palms of the hands with the axle grease, it is quickly applied to the young trees, when they are caught near the ground and, closely encircling them, pulled upwards. This puts a thin coat all over the trunk of the trees, that a rain will not wash off nor will the sun take away its odor.

PROTECT THE LITTLE BIRDS

Fruit Growers and Farmers Lose Immense Amount of Money on Account of Ravages of Insects.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.)
Fruit and fruit growers of the country are losing over $1,000,000,000 a year by reason of the ravages of insects. Cotton growers are losing $50,000,000 a year by reason of the ravages of the boll weevil. And all because the natural enemies of that bug, are practically exterminated.

Wheat and fruit growing regions are suffering because of the killing off of sap suckers, robins, bluejays, bluebirds, crows, tangers, martins, swallows, swifts, nighthawks, egrets, herons, bobolinks, gulls, kingfishers and other birds which men love to kill under the pure lust for slaughter.

A quail killed in a potato field had in its crop the remains of 101 potato bugs. Another killed in Texas had in its crop: the remains of 127 boll weevils. Another killed in a Kansas wheatfield had the remains of 1,200 chinch bugs.

Winter Work in Orchards.

That this season of the year is the most propitious for doing satisfactory and profitable work in the orchard none can deny, since the conditions there are such that the minimum amount of labor will produce maximum results, the coolness of the weather also assisting the farmer in accomplishing more with the same efforts than at any other season during the entire year.

Honest Packing.

The man who puts up an honest pack of first-class fruit in uniform, well-made packages need never fear that the money spent for attractive labels will be wasted.

Novel Bird Nest On Display.

Uncle Amos Jenkins, a nature lover and a close observer of things in general, brought to this office Tuesday a novelty in the way of a bird's nest. It is the former home of an oriole, and the workmanship is masterful, the nest being braced and tied with perfect knots to the limb of a tree, a small section of which was cut off. The nest is on display in Roark's show window, and every passer-by is attracted to it, and wonders at the remarkable skill displayed by the bird.

Courier-Journal and Times, Special Edition.

The special edition of The Courier-Journal and Times, Tuesday, was a fine example of modern newspaper work. It is made up of fifteen sections, with more than 200 pages, illustrated throughout with the highest work of the engraver's art. This is the largest edition of any newspaper ever issued in the South, and one of the largest ever issued in the United States. It was called the "Southern Prosperity" number, and celebrated the forty-fourth anniversary of The Courier-Journal.

JUST A LITTLE SMILE

False Hopes.
"Poor Bob had a dreadful disappointment last week."
"What was it?"
"His employer told him he was going to give him a raise, and when the poor fellow's hopes were raised to the highest pitch what do you think the employer did?"
"What did he do?"
"Invited Bob to take a ride with him in a captive balloon."

Their Sorry Plight.
"This weather is certainly rough on some people."
"The poor, I presume, you refer to?"
"No, the almost rich."
"I don't understand you."
"The fellows who own fur overcoats. It's too warm to wear them, and it's too cold to go without them."

An Unfortunate Child.
"They say that Mrs. Waddington's little boy is ambidextrous," said Mrs. Oldcastle.
"Land sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Gotlatte, "is that so? Ain't it too bad! They expected he was going to be all right after they got his tonsils cut out."

An Objection.
"Did you sell any of your oil paintings to the lady?"
"No, she's a temperance crank."
"What has that to do with it?"
"Won't buy any but water colors."

Degeneration.
"The ancient Romans seem to have got a lot of fun out of gladiators fighting to the death."
"And in these times they won't even let us kill an occasional umpire!"

MAYBE.

Miss Chance—Miss Antique says her engagement ring cost a hundred dollars.
Miss Caustique—I guess he means that she spent that much entertaining the man before she got it.

Backs to the Farm.
Make doctors, lawyers, merchants of all boys, if you're given. And in a few years taters will be fifty cents apiece.

Making a Date.
Latin Teacher—Now, you may give me an example of the dative.
High School Girl (with her mind elsewhere)—I will meet you at 8 o'clock.—Puck.

Knew One Different, Probably.
"I'm sure she isn't married."
"Why?"
"She started to argue the question when Mrs. Bulwer said all men are alike."

Model of Politeness.
"Mrs. X is as polite as an echo."
"As an echo! What do you mean by that?"
"She never fails to return one's call."

Sympathy and a Knock.
"I'm so sorry for Mrs. Green."
"Why?"
"She has so much trouble, poor thing, and it's all her own fault, too."

Don't Mention It.
"Pardon me, sir," said she, "for walking on your feet."
"Don't mention it, miss," he replied. "I walk on them myself at times."

Where Engagements Take Place.
"The canons of a church are found in the pulpits," observed the Observer of Events and Things, "but most of the fighting is done in the choir."

Hand Painted.
Redd—Mrs. Black claims her face is her fortune.
Greene—Well, she's made it nearly all herself.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"—Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"The Miles' Nervine raised me from the grave and I am much indebted to it. I can never say enough for your great medicine. If any one had offered me $1000 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'No thank you.'"
MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR,
Blum, Tex.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of dyspepsia, flatulency, and indigestion as real diseases, but they are symptoms only of a certain specific trouble—acid indigestion. It was this fact that first convinced Dr. Shoop of the correctness of that very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Acting directly on the stomach nerves, alone brought that source of trouble under control. It is a powerful, but not a harsh, remedy, and it is the only one that restores the stomach to its normal condition.
